SUMMER SAFETY

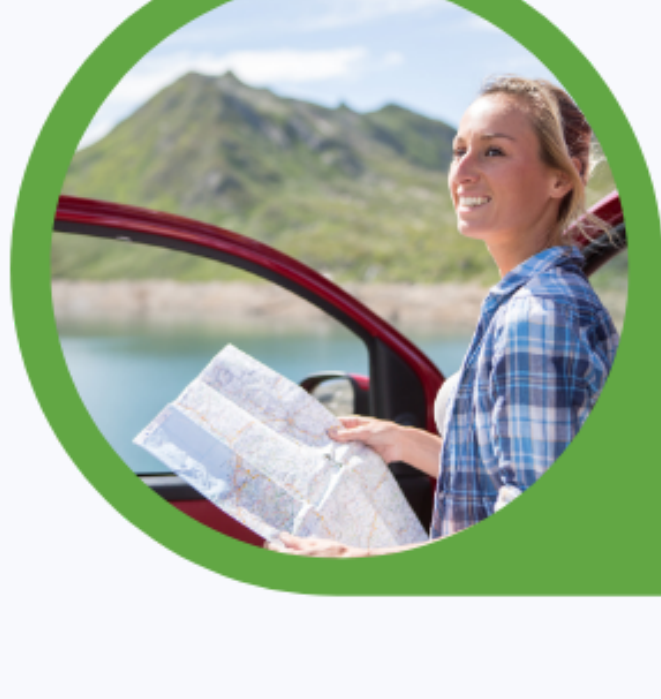

Tips for Traveling Safely

Regardless of whether you are planning a vacation or simply getting in the car to commute to work or visit friends or family, it is important to make sure to be prepared. No one ever plans on getting a flat tire or having his or her vehicle break down, but the unexpected can always happen.

Once you are on the road, avoid partaking in risky behaviors like:

- Speeding
- Driving distracted
- Being under the influence of alcohol and/or drugs
- Aggressive driving
- Driving while drowsy

BICYCLE ACCIDENTS

Deadly or Traumatic Bicycle Accidents on the Rise

According to the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, bicycling leads to the highest number of sporting and recreation-related emergency department visits for traumatic brain injuries, or TBIs, in the United States.

Because the risks associated with traumatic brain injuries are so substantial, the CDC analyzed ten years' worth of data from the National Electronic Injury Surveillance System – All Injury Program (NEISS-AIP). The agency used this data not only to determine the incidence rate of TBIs in bicycle riders but also effective ways to reduce the catastrophic injury rates and to promote bicyclist safety nationwide.

WORK INJURIES

Construction Deaths Reach Highest Level in Nine Years

According to a recent report from The Center for Construction Training and Research, construction deaths rose by more than 41% between 2011 and 2019. By 2019, the number of on-the-job fatalities were the highest they had been in nine years.

The disturbing jump in deadly injuries is particularly striking among older workers and Hispanic workers. The report not only sheds light on how certain demographics are especially vulnerable to becoming victims of preventable workplace incidents, but it also examines which construction hazards create the deadliest risks for workers.

MEDICAL MALPRACTICE

Can I Sue for Medical Malpractice for a Cancer Misdiagnosis?

Misdiagnosis of a medical condition is all too common in the United States. Because many cancers are much easier to cure when they are detected early, a cancer misdiagnosis may result in delayed treatment, causing serious injury or death. Individuals harmed by a cancer misdiagnosis can sue for medical malpractice and seek damages for medical expenses, lost income, and pain and suffering. Patients should be aware of clues that might indicate a cancer misdiagnosis. Those who have suffered harm from cancer misdiagnosis by a doctor should contact an experienced medical malpractice lawyer for assistance.

What are the Facts About Infections and Medical Malpractice?

Before undergoing a medical procedure, patients are often asked to sign a form warning them about the risk of infection. However, patients who develop a serious infection because of the negligence of a health care provider or institution may have the right to file a medical malpractice lawsuit. Knowing the facts about infections and medical malpractice can help patients protect their rights and their health. Patients who have developed a serious infection that may be due to someone else's negligence should contact an experienced medical malpractice lawyer.

INJURED ON VACATION?

What Should I Do if I am in an Accident on Vacation?

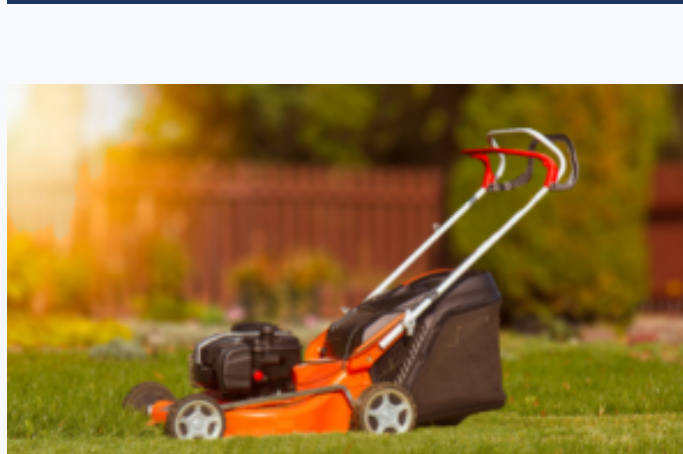

Families across the United States are eager to get on the road this summer and go on vacation after more than a year of pandemic restrictions. The increase in vehicular traffic also means a greater chance of getting into a car accident on vacation.

When accidents happen at home, injured persons typically seek medical treatment from health care providers they know and trust. This is not always the case while on vacation, particularly if the destination is in a remote area or a foreign country. Despite any concerns that travelers may have about the quality of medical care available away from home, they should seek treatment immediately if injured, even if they believe their injuries are minor.

PRODUCTS LIABILITY

What Should Parents Know about Lawn Mower Injuries in Children?

Each year, more than 8,490 children in the United States are treated in emergency departments for lawn mower-related injuries. Some of these children are injured while operating mowers; others are hurt when the mower ejects debris or backs up over them.

Lawn mower-related injuries can be devastating, including loss of fingers, hands, toes, or feet; broken or dislocated bones; burns; eye injuries; soft tissue damage; and sprains or strains. Many times, lawn mower injuries are due to someone else's negligence.
