SEASONAL SAFETY

Important Holiday Safety Tips

We all know they're coming...the holidays are practically here. And with the fast-approaching season comes more travel, more parties, and more cooking. Between the months of late November and early January, we all must remember to take certain precautions to keep ourselves, our friends and our families safe and sound.

How to Protect Yourself and Your Loved Ones from RSV

RSV, or respiratory syncytial virus, causes infections of the lungs and/or respiratory tract. The virus is quite a prevalent one; for example, the Mayo Clinic reports that most children have been infected with the virus by the time they are two. Children are not the only ones who can get sick with RSV – adults can also contract the virus. Although most adults and healthy, older children experience mild symptoms that mimic the common cold, infants and babies 12 months and younger, older people, individuals with heart and/or lung disease and those who are immunocompromised sometimes experience severe complications that require medical care and intensive treatment.

Flu Vaccine Recommendations: High-Dose More Effective, Especially for Certain Age Groups

According to the results of a new study spanning the last three flu seasons, health experts are officially backing the high-dose flu vaccine for individuals over the age of 65. The high-dose vaccine contains four times as many antigens as standard-dose vaccines do, and offers more comprehensive protection, lowering the severity of potential complications in breakthrough cases. The Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) report that flu activity typically peaks between December and February and recommend routine annual influenza vaccinations for all people over the age of 6-months-old who do not have any contraindications.

Federal Court to Hear Growing Assault Allegations Against Uber

Over the past six years, hundreds of women have filed lawsuits against Uber saying that the rideshare company failed to adequately protect them. In a recent landmark legal decision, a panel of judges decided that about 80 of these cases could be consolidated into one to be heard by a federal court judge. It has not been possible to join these cases together in the past so the ruling is an important one for the victims, whose attorneys feel that they will be able to demonstrate that Uber has a deep-seated and prevalent issue with sexual assault and endangering passengers.

WORKER SAFETY

New Workers Face Significant Risks for Occupational Injuries

According to a recent study, just over one-third of occupational injuries occur during a worker's first year on the job. While it may not come as a surprise that newer, less experienced workers are at a higher risk of injury, the study illustrates how improving training efforts among new hires could reduce preventable – and far too often catastrophic – workplace accidents and injuries.

PEDESTRIAN SAFETY

How Do Pedestrian Accidents Happen?

Pedestrian accidents have been on the rise in Philadelphia and across the country. The latest reporting year for Pennsylvania saw nearly 4,300 pedestrian crashes, with over 4,100 injuries and 150 fatalities. Pedestrian accidents can happen anywhere, including local small-town roads and downtown cities. Just as motorists are responsible to other drivers and passengers to operate their vehicles safely and lawfully, they owe the same duty to pedestrians. When drivers practice poor driving behaviors, tragic pedestrian accidents can happen.
